

Marketing & Communication

Internship / Volunteer

You are enthusiastic about sustainability, regeneration, and the circular economy? You are convinced that it's highly important to spread this message around the world? You are excited about practical experience in the field of marketing, communication, and regenerative and sustainable development? Then this opportunity at Circonnect is for you:

We are looking for a marketing and communication intern and volunteer for 8-10 hours per week for at least 6 months.

Circonnect is the innovation lab that is supporting people in companies and regions to bring regeneration and sustainability to life. Circonnect works with the regenerative, circular and ecosystemic approach to develop projects, products, organizations and regions that offer extraordinary value to people, nature and business. From inspiration to implementation - the transdisciplinary expert team provides services around 3 pillars to develop and bring regenerative solutions to the market in a life-affirming and practical way: Regenerative design & innovation, capacity building & training, and strategy & communication. Areas of expertise are Green & circular cities, regenerative and sustainable tourism, nature-based solutions and regenerative and circular food. Let's create a beautiful world together, where people, nature and the economy thrive with a good quality of life for all.

Your tasks:

- Website management: Translation of website content into German and website updates
- Content management for social media channels
- Event communication
- Program management: Assistance with projects in the field of circular economy and regenerative tourism

What you bring:

- Strong communication skills: Text reliability and enjoyment of writing
- Knowledge and interest in social media and website management
- Enthusiasm and ideally knowledge in the field of circular economy, sustainability and regeneration
- Excellent English skills, very good German skills
- Creativity, proactivity and commitment
- Initiative and ability to work in a team
- Independent, structured and detailed way of working

What we offer:

- An attractive opportunity to gain experience and learn in an exciting industry in a growing start-up environment.
- The opportunity to work on local and international projects.
- A flexible, human, highly motivating work environment with "intra-preneurship" opportunities.
- Fast learning and personal career development, including potential short to medium term opportunities.

Are you interested?

Then we look forward to receiving your application (including motivation, background and ideally work samples) and CV to vanessa@circonnect.world.